RELICS.

BY VIRTNER LINDEL.

I am sad to-night in my chamber,
The fire is burning low;
I sit and call back the memories
Of the witching long ago.

I will open this little casket,
It contains records of yore;
Of hopes that have fled forever,
Of dreams I shall dream no more.

Ah! here is a golden locket,
A picture within so rare;
A sweet, yet queenly beauty,
A girl with golden hair.

But she, so fair, so beautiful,
Was "false as fair," to me;
But looking now on the dear sweet face,
I wonder how it could be.

I will kiss it, and place it back,
There let it ever remain;
'Twould awaken too many sad memories
To look at it again.

And here's a ring I gave to her,—
A ring with a lock of hair;
'Twas pledged with a kiss on her small white hand,
As I fondly placed it there.

She was false, and alone to-night,
I sit by the fire's dull glow,
And read again the letters she wrote,
And kiss the ring she wore.

Mr. Lincoln's Reconstruction Policy.

The Republicans venerate Mr. Lincoln as a political saint—and denounce Mr. Johnson as a political renegade; and yet the policy of these two Presidents on the reconstruction question is substantially identical. It was the constant belief of Mr. Lincoln, up to the time of his death, that the Southern States had a right to resume their places in Congress whenever they should see fit. They could not elect Senators and Representatives without thereby acknowledging their allegiance to the government, and there was nothing which Mr. Lincoln had so much at heart as the submission of the revolted States expressed in that manner. We will instance a few of his many promulgations of that wish.

Of all the public acts of Mr. LINCOLN, the most noted is his Emancipation proclamation. In that proclamation, he offered to exempt any State from its operations which would return to loyalty within the ensuing hundred days, and the proof of that loyalty was to consist in the fact that the State should be then represented in Congress. This was a full recognition of the right of the seceded States to return whenever they chose. No Republican took exception to this part of the Emancipation proclamation; the doctrine had not then been invented that the acts of secession deprived the States of their right to representation. In point of fact, several of them had been represented after the ordinances of secession, and while they were in arms against the government; TENNESSEE in particular, one of whose seats in the Senate was occupied by ANDREW JOHNSON, whose right was unquestioned, and his loyalty warmly applauded. The Emancipation proclamation, that "immortal document" which is one of the canonical scriptures of the Republican party, contains a full recognition of the right of the seceded States to resume their representation in Congress whenever they will.

Another instance is furnished in the reply to the French proposal of mediation. When the war had been two or three years in progress, the government of France offered to interpose its good offices for the settlement of the quarrel.—By the direction of President Lincoln, a reply was made declining the offer, and stating that the Congress of the United States was the appropriate forum for discussing the condition of adjustment, and that seats in that body remained constantly open awaiting the return of the Southern representatives, whenever the States should choose to send them. This reply was made public at the time, and no objection was raised to the recognition of the continued right of the South to representation. But if the right has ever been forfeited, it was forfeited previous to the French offer of mediation.

Another instance is afforded by the correspondence between Mr. Lincoln and Fernando Wood. Mr. Wood wrote to the President that he had information from the South leading him to believe that the Southern States would elect representatives to the next Congress if they could be assured of an amnesty. Mr. Lincoln wrote back in reply that he distrusted the correctness of Mr. Wood's information, but that if it should prove true, the desired amnesty should not be withheld. Here was another complete recognition of the right of the South to representation whenever it should choose to send members.

President Lincoln's remarkable veto of the reconstruction bill, the year of the last Presidential election, is equally significant. Congress had passed a bill assuming exclusive jurisdiction over the subject, and prescribing the conditions on which the States might be again represented. Mr. Lincoln withheld his approval, and in assigning his reasons, he said that the plan proposed in the bill was a very good one if any of the States concerned chose to adopt it, but he assumed that no rigid method should be forced on them against their consent.

These examples suffice to prove that Mr. Lincoln's views of restoration were as opposite to those now held by Congress, as are those of President Johnson.—N. Y. World.

WENDELL PHILLIPS' last manifesto demands the destruction of the United States Supreme Court. He suggests no more reconstruction, and proposes no substitute for it, that we can discover. Pretending that "the instincts of the masses and the conscience of just men," &c., were outraged, he says that the "Constitution, with its time-honored compromises, held up by the strongest of parties, was dust in the balance against such a current. This Court will prove the same." Here we have a clear confession that this party has overthrown the Constitution when it came in their way, and because the Court will not help to do this work, it also is to be sacrificed. Surely there is no want of candor here, and the issue for the people of the North is very plainly made up. They are forewarned, and if the edifice of their liberties is destroyed it will be their own fault.—Richmond Examiner.

THE SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL, SEATON GALES, } Editors.

Wednesday Evening, Jan. 23, 1867.

The Legislature.

A quorum appeared in both Houses this morning and both bodies proceeded to business in the right spirit. Mr. McAden, the Speaker of the House, who was prevented by illness from being present on yesterday, we were glad to find in his seat to-day.

The Congress.

Our telegram indicates that the friends of Constitutional liberty in the House, are not as impotent as they have been supposed to be.—The contest on yesterday and during the whole of last night, upon Mr. Stevens' bill, shows that the conservative men are at length in dead earnest, and that if they are beaten, it will be after a warmly contested fight.

Nothing is so much needed now on the part of the friends of the Constitution and the government, as earnestness and determination. They have too long been slumbering over the hope, that truth must prevail by its own force—that the madness of the hour would pass away.—They are now waking up to the real purposes and designs of Radicalism—that the cry of "Union," has only been with the Radicals a honeyed phrase, with which to delude the people to the very brink of the destruction of the government. It is now clear, that the spirit and principles of Wendell Phillips, which he has always been honest enough to avow, are the real principles and designs of the ultras in the Republican party, and that professions of devotion to the Union, have been employed simply to delude the great body of the masses who follow them.

The same determined spirit which influences the Conservatives and Democrats of the Congress, must be diffused through the whole country and manifested by the true men of the nation every where, if truth and right would triumph. There is no doubt of the earnestness and working spirit of the Radicals. Every where they are active, and they must be met in the same spirit, if the Constitution and the Union are preserved.

Credit of the State.

The resolutions of Mr. Cowan, of New Hanover, offered previously to the recess, look earnestly and properly to sustaining and improving the credit of the State. Whatever the mad spirit of revolution may do with the political interests of the Southern States, it should be the care and pride of every North Carolinian to maintain, untarnished, the reputation and credit of his State. The propositions of Col. Cowan seem to us to meet the case, of which our legislators, who ought to know well the condition of our people, will be the best judges.

It will be seen that Mr. Berry, of Orange, introduced into the Senate, to-day, a bill relating to the same subject. Its provisions we have not yet examined, but we shall be ready to promote any scheme which looks to the maintenance of the character and integrity of the State, both at home and abroad.

The Memorials.

The memorials in circulation in this State, gotten up under the auspices of Mr. Holden, we learn, are presented to white and colored, for signatures, upon various pleas. A very forcible plea, which has been urged upon ignorant men, is that the signers of that petition will not be liable to the confiscation of their lands. Appeals thus made to their fears are inducing some to sign, who are decidedly opposed to the whole scheme. Hundreds have been induced to sign, who are totally ignorant of the design.

Radical Sense for Once.

The Union Register, at Greensboro, though it is intensely Radical, has an air of sincerity not common in its ranks. We find the following sensible remarks in regard to the course of the Southern people upon the Howard amendment:

"We, of course, advocate the principles of the amendment, 'only more so;' but, the members of the Southern Legislatures would have been something less than men, had they adopted it. It is very much like asking a man who is to be hung to adjust the noose himself to save the hangman the trouble. We cannot see anything so strikingly 'noble,' in the course of the Southern Legislatures in rejecting it, but it was natural and sensible, and we can't blame them for it. In fact, they would have branded themselves as the veriest fools extant, if they had done otherwise. They very properly refused to be culprit and hangman both, and at the same time. We never expected them to do otherwise, and can't see how any sensible man could."

The Future.

The Intelligencer thus graphically describes the consequences which must follow the policy of the Radicals:

The course of the majority in Congress, in endeavoring to dissever the Union, for whose preservation millions of treasure and hundreds of thousands of lives were freely given; in seeking to destroy and uproot the executive and judicial branches of the Government, and to make the Constitution itself the mere plaything of a political faction, is rapidly tending to the destruction, not only of the Government, but of the whole people. It is madly creating a financial crisis, which will involve the rich and the poor alike in one common catastrophe. It will not only destroy the public credit, break the banks and the treasury, stop the mills, silence the forges suspend all commerce, and paralyze the hands of industry, but it will bring gaunt, stark, relentless want to the doors of all, the highest and lowest in the land.

This is the picture that the unerring fingers of fate are painting in effaceable colors upon our whole horizon. It cannot much longer be shut out from the unwilling vision of the destructives in Congress. It is the nameless terror they are themselves reckless invoking. Let them pause in their career and contemplate its awful relations.

☞ MEMBERS of the Legislature who desire the Daily Sentinel, during the session, will please leave notice at our office.

Mr. Holden and Mr. Calhoun.

The following really beautiful Poem, written shortly after the death of Mr. Calhoun, was Mr. Holden's tribute to his memory. It possesses high merit, not only in an artistic point of view, but in evident sincerity and earnestness of sentiment,—which is always a great charm in poetry. The author's "whole" soul is in his verse. Indeed, we hazard little in saying that there is more heart in it, than in anything that has ever emanated from his pen.

By the way, we wonder if Mr. Thaddeus Stevens, or Mr. Wade, or Mr. Sumner, are fond of poetry?

JOHN C. CALHOUN.

BY W. W. HOLDEN,

"Editor of the Standard."

The voyager on the Southern main,
Views with rapt awe the hallowed sign
Which nightly flames "beyond the line;"
Nor deems the labor all in vain
Which brings him to that long sought shrine.

The various tribes, in field, by flood,
Walk in its light when day is done,
And hail it in its high abode
Best relfex of the absent sun:

In all their devious wanderings,
From dewy eve, through midnight's reign,
It guides them till the morning's wings
Shed sunlight o'er the earth again.

What if that cross its front should veil,
And, darkly, sink in night's embrace?
Nor other stars nor sun could fill
Or share its wondrous dwelling place.

Star of the South! 'twas thine with thee!
To thee all eyes and hearts were turned,
As round thy path, from plain to sea,
The glory of thy greatness burned.

Millions were drawn to thee, and bound,
By mind's high mastery; millions hailed
In thee a GUIDING star, nor found
A ray in thee that waned or failed.

Fix'd as that sign which hangs in Heaven;
Firm as the earth it shines upon;
Pure as the snow by light winds driven
Wert thou, Columbia's honored son!

No night's embrace for thee! nor pall
But such as mortal hand hath wrought:
THOU LIVEST STILL in mind—in all
That breathes, or speaks, or lives in thought.

Star of the South! thy beams are here—
HERE IN THIS HEART that weeps thy loss;
Though hidden, thou art still a sphere,
Serene, refined from earthly dross,
Eternal, and intensely clear.

RALEIGH, April 6, 1850.

The following, from the Constitutional Union, is pretty severe. The Union is considered to be the Executive organ, but whether the following should be regarded as significant, we cannot say:

THE BLOODY TREASON OF THE NEW YORK HERALD.

The New York Herald of the 17th instant, has two articles on the subject of the impeachment of the President, which for malignity and falsification of history, have no parallel in journalism. While red-handed treason held the pen, bitter and unrelenting enmity to the Constitution and our form of Government fired the brain which was bold and wicked enough to say to the world, that what it calls the "misdemeanors" of the President "render him liable to impeachment."

The transparent design of these articles is to move the minds of the weak-kneed Jacobin-Republicans up to their work. Let them take this advice, proceed in their wicked designs, and some morning, in other places, and in a new condition, they will realize the bitter consequences. Indeed, as the Herald says, "the struggle is still going on." "The great Union movement of the war will run its course," but not as the Herald applies it, to utterly destroy the government, but to save it, and if necessary its strong and iron hand will be invoked to stay the course and prevent the consummation of Radical treason. The Great Oath of the President to protect and defend the Constitution will not be forgotten and the people, who sustain him, with their five hundred thousand majority of the voting population, North and South, will not forget him. The Herald cares not for consequences. Nothing would please it so much as to see ruin and anarchy rampant. Let those who would take its advice beware.

UPON WHOM CAN CONGRESS CALL?

Events have already brought the government to the very verge of another revolution. If the Radical majority in Congress pursues its treasonable course much longer, the Government, in order to sustain itself will have to arm its supporters. At the call of the President, all his friends North and South, and the Army and the NAVY will respond. In such a contest the issue cannot be doubtful. Congressmen may be valiant fighters on the floor of Congress, but when they come to lead their cohorts into the field it will be another thing. The real armies and great soldiers of the REPUBLIC will be found fighting under the FLAG! We advise the opposition of the determined and fixed fact that ANDREW JOHNSON will serve out his CONSTITUTIONAL term of office.

SOMETHING OF A HURRICANE.—On Sunday last the people of this city experienced quite a windy season, but we are informed by a gentleman just from the scene, that along the upper portion of Brunswick county, and adjoining the Bladen line, for a short period the wind reached such a height and blew with so much severity as to be likened to something of a hurricane. Trees, fences and even houses were torn down in its maddening course. Our informant states that the country over which this gale passed exhiats, a scene of destruction, seldom observed, in this portion of the country. Miles of fence have been so demolished as to leave scarcely of a pannel standing to mark the spot where it once stood. Giant trees succumbed to the fury of the gale, and the air was for a short while clouded with branches in every direction. Negro houses were demolished and so great was the terror which prevailed that the occupants of those still standing deserted their habitations.

The gale was of but short duration, otherwise the result must have been far worse.—Wil. Journal.

A RELIC.—There is now in the possession of the Wilmington Library Association, an old volume entitled "Office of a North Carolina Justice of the Peace," printed by James Davis, in Newbern, N. C., in the year 1774, and presented to the Association by Griffith J. McRee, Esq., previous to the war.

This antique looking volume is the first book ever published in North Carolina, and is neatly printed in the old style letter, on what must then have been considered excellent paper, but which is now much faded and worn.—Wilmington Journal.

Mr. Holderby, announcing the death, during recess, of Ulysses Hand, Senator from Rockingham, said:

MR. SPEAKER:—Since our adjournment on the 24th ultimo, an all-wise Providence has seen fit to remove from our midst another member of this Legislature. Ulysses Hand, Esq., my colleague in the Senate, departed this life at his residence in the County of Rockingham, on Sunday, the 6th day of the present month.

When I parted with him at this place, only a few weeks since, I fondly hoped, notwithstanding his delicate health, that upon the re-assembling of this body, he would have made one of our number. But here again, we have the proof of what has been so forcibly said by another, that "the spider's most attenuated thread is cord—is cable compared with the tenure by which man holds his earthly existence." But while his immortal spirit has taken its flight, his memory lives and will ever live in the affection of those who were the recipients of his unbounded benevolence.

From the commencement to the close of the late civil war, Ulysses Hand was assidnously engaged in writing his own history, which he did in terms more eloquent than language could portray—it was written, not in words, but in deeds more durable than brass or marble. During the late pitiless and intensely cold weather, my heart has been made almost to bleed when I have thought of the number of widows and orphans in his vicinity whom his charity had so long and so often relieved; nor were my sympathies abated when I reflected that there might not be left on earth another Hand to afford them succor.

Mr. Hand has left a son, a daughter and a long train of relatives and friends to mourn the loss of one whose kindness and generosity knew no limit.

Resolutions suitable to the occasion, have been passed in the Senate, and as a further mark of respect to the deceased, I move that this House do now adjourn until to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock. Adjourned.

For the Sentinel.

A North Carolina Fable---Not from Æsop.

Once there was quarrelling among the bees.—They could not agree about the honey. A portion determined to leave, and chose a fine May morning for their secession. A neighbor, who had been on the watch, assailed them with such a hurly-burly of tin pans and gongs, that he succeeded at last in hiving them. In the confusion they lost their Queen. A mouse was installed as their Provisional Governor. The bees complained, but were threatened with brimstone unless they kept quiet and made honey industriously for their conqueror. So they worked away for about a twelve-month. They were then allowed to choose for themselves. The Prov. Gov. softly persuaded them to choose him; but they had been secretly nursing a bee of their own to rule over them. Him they greatly preferred. The choice was made—and the X. P. G. was mad. His "social position" had hitherto been outside the hive, in a small brass cage on which was suspended a minature spy-glass. His duty had been to watch and report. During this twelve-month the bees had shown him no respect; for they felt none. They buzzed by him carelessly, almost contemptuously—sometimes close by his nose. The young fledglings, like mischievous school-boys, sometimes played pranks; and in their homeward flight would suddenly halt over his head for a moment, and do something which was by no means complimentary to the powers that be.

But now he had been rejected, his rage knew no bounds. He crawled into the hive, and snubbed the whole apian tribe—called them abominable names, criticised their skill in architecture, abused their hexagonal cells, and told them that triangular ones were unmistakably right, and crossly averred that their honey had an awful bad taste. Then suiting the action to the word, he thrust his nose into the central honey-comb and began to nibble. The submissive bees in their turn became enraged, pitched into and stung him "in every principal part." This brought him to his dignity, as he understands it. He became mulish, and swore that "he would stay in spite of them, and they could not drive him away." So the bees stung, and the X. P. G. swore. His head swelled and the poison worked. And so it is to this day. The bees don't care how long he stays; but while he stays he shall be stung.

MORAL.—A mouse has no business in bee hives. Better let the bees alone, and go a-mousing somewhere else.

A Correction and a Call.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—The Chicago Editor who, a short time ago, stated that when the great North Carolinian first went to Washington after the Governorship, he carried a carpet bag full of the Standard, to show how lustily he had shricked for peace in 1864 and 1865, is slightly mistaken. His carpet bag was filled with other things, and he carried only slips from the paper, carefully cut from the side of other explanatory articles, stating that he meant only peace with independence to the Confederacy.—In all his clamors for peace, he never desired or spoke of a re-union, until Sherman's army was in sight. Peace was to come by desertion from the army; because the Yankees, as a reasonable and economical people, would of course retire from their army three of their soldiers for each one of our deserters. They could only wish the relative strength of the two armies to remain. By this shrewd arrangement the two armies would melt away, until they would amount to only a handful; and that would of itself bring peace.

These slips were carefully folded and put in a leathern pocket-book, which was placed in the left breast coat pocket of the owner. While returning from Washington, this pocket-book attracted the eye and the nimble fingers of a perepatic pickpocket one morning, and has never been heard of since.

This loss has caused intense anxiety to the great North Carolinian, as these same proofs are now called for by Thaddeus Stevens, and others, to whom it was not thought proper before to submit them. The office file of the Standard having been so mutilated, it is now desirable to supply the deficiency. And that is the object of this call, viz: to procure a file of that paper for those years, to be forwarded with all speed to the Standard office, for which the highest cash price will be given—and no questions asked.

The sympathies of the public are about equally divided between the great man and the thief, for the grievous disappointment of each. By giving this statement and call one insertion, you will greatly oblige one, who is not an unmistakably loyal man, (SO-CALLED.)

Commercial Failures.

In the New York Times of the 18th, we find some interesting and significant statistics with reference to the commercial failures at the North for the past year, as well as for the preceding years.

In 1862 the aggregate liabilities of those who failed was, in round numbers, $23,000,000; in 1863 the aggregate was $8,000,000; in 1864 it was $8,500,000; in 1865 it was $17,500,000, while in 1866 the aggregate was $47,000,000.—It thus appears that the aggregate of liabilities of those who failed in 1866 is nearly six times as great as in 1862, and nearly three times as great as in 1865. This is a frightful increase, and indicates that the termination of the war was but the commencement of financial troubles.

OBITUARY.

Died in Elizabeth City, N. C., on the 14th. day of December, 1866, Gen. WILLIAM E. MANN, aged 42 years, 2 months, and 20 days. Gen. MANN was a native of Chowan from which county he moved, in early life, to Elizabeth City. In his youth he labored under many disadvantages, though he obtained a good practical education, otherwise deficient, in that most excellent school, a Printing Office. His profession he followed for many years passing through the several grades of compositor, publisher and editor. In all of these positions he acted with satisfaction to his friends and credit to himself. For many years preceding his death he had held the position of Brigadier General of the First Brigade of N. C. Militia—had served the people of Pasquotank as Sheriff, and as representative in the Legislature of the State a number of years.—As a member of that body, he was active and useful, and always considerate of the wishes of his people. His feelings were generous towards all, and he had few enemies and hosts of friends. He was unselfish and liberal to a fault, and the recipients of his kindnesses will not soon forget his memory. He had been feeble for a considerable length of time before his death, and when it came, he was not unprepared—but told his friends, by his bed-side, that he was going home to Heaven. He leaves a wife to mourn his loss, who, with Divine help, will find full consolation in the last, happy moments of her departed husband. May His grace be her staff and support.

FERTILIZERS FOR SPRING CROPS.

WE beg to inform the trade and planters of North Carolina and Virginia, that we are prepared to furnish them with the most approved FERTILIZERS, on the most accommodating terms. We will have a stock of genuine PERUVIAN GUANO, purchased direct from the Agent of the Peruvian Government.
We have now in store, for immediate delivery, 325 tons BRADLEY'S SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME, which won for itself such an enviable reputation in the Cotton and Tobacco counties of North Carolina and Virginia, last season, proving itself equal, and in many important respects, superior to the Peruvian Guano. We give an analysis of it as ascertained by Dr. Hayes, one of the most eminent Chemists in the country:

Results of Analyses Made of Bradley's Patent Super-Phosphate of Lime, as now sold by Wm. L. Bradley.

100 PARTS CONSIST OF
Moisture	5.30
Prepared animal matter, salts of Ammonia, fatty substances and Humus	38.50
Bone Phosphates of Lime, Magnesia and Iron (Soluble Phosphates of do. 16 6-10.)	36.80
Sulphate of Lime	16.50
Salts	20
Insoluble	2.60
	99.90

The animal matter afforded 4 2-10 parts of Ammonia when it was decomposed, and, as will be seen, nearly one-half of the Bone Phosphate is soluble.
After many analyses of your Super-Phosphate of Lime, made during the last few months, I have found your standard of quality full equal to that of any you have ever sold in former years; and I am satisfied that you include the correct principles in the manufacture. Respectfully,
A. A. HAYES, M. D., State Assayer.

THE SENTINEL.

Wednesday Evening, Jan. 23, 1867.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

INSURANCE COMPANY.—We call special attention to the advertisement of the President of the N. C. Mutual Fire Insurance Company, of this city, in to-day's issue. The members of the Company are much interested in its affairs at present.

THE CRESCENT MONTHLY.—The No. for February of this monthly has been laid upon our table by the publishers. The publishers consider it one of the best issues of the series. It is published by W. B. Smith & Co., of Raleigh, and W. Evelyn & Co., New Orleans.

PAPER.—We regret to be obliged to send out the Sentinel on such poor paper, as we do to-day, but it was unavoidable, our usual supply from the mill having failed to arrive in time.

LADIES' MEMORIAL SEWING SOCIETY.—We are requested to give notice that there will be a meeting of this Society, at the residence of the President, on Friday morning, at 11 o'clock. A full attendance is particularly desirable.

SMALL POX.—The Mayor of Charlotte announces that the Small Pox has entirely disappeared in that place.

GOLDSBORO.—Messrs. Jones, Murphy & Co. have taken charge of the Griswold Hotel at Goldsboro. Mr. Granger, the late Proprietor of the Granger Hotel, has bought the "Derby" Saloon and is keeping it on the European plan.

ROCK ISLAND FACTORY.—We had a call today, from Mr. Wriston, one of the active operators of the Rock Island Factory, at Charlotte, and we are pleased to learn that the Factory is doing well. The Cassimeres, Jeans and Flannels made at this Factory, are of the best quality, and very superior in durability to those made at the North. Our Southern merchants should give them general circulation.

BEAUTIFUL.—We are indebted to our friend the editor of the Goldsboro' News, for two beautifully executed copies of the Lord's Prayer, in a space less than a shilling. It is done with a pen by Miss Van Loui Hutton, if we do not mistake. We have no glass strong enough yet to decipher it.

Gen. Grant's Opinion.

The Arkansas delegates on their journey homeward, made at Louisville some statements of their interview with General Grant, which we find in the Western papers. The following is from the Louisville Courier, whose editor had an interview with the delegates:

Gen. Grant said he did not feel called upon to pronounce an opinion upon either the constitutionality, expediency or justice of the proposed constitutional amendment. He further stated that he considered the subject of suffrage as one belonging exclusively to the States, and that it was one for them alone to decide as their interests or judgments might dictate. He thought that if Congress intended the amendment to be regarded by the Southern States as the condition of restoration, some evidence should have been furnished that such was the fact. In his judgment a joint resolution should have been passed setting forth that upon the ratification of the amendment the States should have been admitted to representation. So thinking, and believing that the Southern States would not accept the amendment or give it respectful consideration without some such assurance, he had urged this policy upon some of the leading members of Congress at the commencement of the session.

General Grant stated his belief that if he were called on to vote on the question of negro suffrage in Illinois, he would vote against it, for the reason that the number of negroes there is so small that they would exercise but little political influence; but that if he were a citizen of a Southern State he would probably vote for it, in the belief and expectation that he could influence the negroes to vote as he pleased, and that the representative power of the States, as well as his own personal influence, would be increased rather than diminished thereby.

The Louisville correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette (Radical) writes to the same purport as to the above:

He also stated that at the commencement of Congress he urged upon prominent members, if they intended to make the adoption, on the part of the Southern States, of the amendment the condition precedent to re-admission, they ought to pass a resolution to that effect, solemnly pledging Congress to receive the Senators and Representatives into that body. If they did not take some such step, they could not expect that Southern people to take a step that might be preliminary to others that would lead them they knew not where. On the negro suffrage question he was more decided, stating that he believed that was a question that should be left wholly and entirely with the people of the several States; that Congress, in his opinion, had no right to interfere in that matter; and emphatically declared if the question came up in Illinois, and he were there to vote, he would certainly vote against it. But he said, smiling, if he were in one of the Southern States, he believed he would vote for it, for he was satisfied that he could march the negroes up to the polls and vote them as he pleased, and would thus be gaining instead of losing political power.

General Robert E. Lee's Estate.

[From the Washington Correspondent of the St. Louis Times.]

The stranger in Washington down Louisiana avenue, with his face to the west, sees before him, when he gets to the front of the City Hall, on the South side of the Potomac, and on a commanding eminence, an edifice which, at the distance of three miles from the point of vision, resembles a Greek temple. This is Arlington House, the residence before the war of Gen. R. E. Lee. The Arlington estate was one of the largest, handsomest and most valuable in Virginia. At an early period of the late war the mansion was stripped of everything valuable that could be carried away by soldiers from Pennsylvania and New England. Pictures, mirrors, statuary, r are and costly books, old chins and silver plate, were all gobbled up, and sent off to the "loyal" North. These articles are now to be seen in dozens of houses in the States I have named.

SKATING EXTRAORDINARY.—Two Richmond youths, on Saturday, made a skating excursion to Drewry's Bluff, and returned as they went, the total distance being about 80 miles, only 4½ hours being occupied in the trip.

PERUVIAN GUANO SUBSTITUTE!

BAUGH'S
RAW BONE SUPER-PHOSPHATE OF LIME.

TRADE MARK

Manufactured under the formula originated in 1854 and patented by
BAUGH & SONS,
SOLE PROPRIETORS, AT THE
Delaware River Chemical Works,
PHILADELPHIA, U. S. A.

This old established MANURE is manufactured from Bones that have not been burned or steamed, and it contains all their original organic matter. It is active in its operation, and is a fertiliser of great durability. It does not exhaust the soil like Peruvian Guano, but on the contrary permanently improves it.
Previous to 1861 it was introduced into the Southern States to considerable extent, and again in 1865, where it has been used with remarkable success upon Cotton, Corn, Tobacco, and all Crops.
A trial will convince any planter of its merits. Pamphlets containing well-known Southern evidence furnished upon application to New York or Philadelphia offices.
Sold by Dealers in all the principal cities and towns throughout the United States and British Provinces.

a graduate, and for fifteen years, (up to the commencement of the war) a

Professor of Mathematics, Civil and Military Engineering, Architecture, Topographical and Industrial Drawing, and Assistant Instructor of Infantry tactics, Maj. W. A. OBENCHAIN, "first distinguished Graduate," of his Class in the Virginia Military Institute, and for efficient and meritorious services during the war, promoted Captain of Engineers in the late C. S. Candidates for admission as Cadets are advised to come without delay. Until the 1st. of February next, all those Cadets present at the Academy, will be pushed forward in their studies irrespective of classes, so as to enable them, at that time, to enter the most advanced classes for which they may be found qualified.
